FOREWORD

The war has broken customs and methods well established in tradition and habit. This Year Book represents such a break in the established ways. For some years the students of the Washington State Normal School aided by the generous support of the business men of Ellensburg have published their annual, The Kooltuo, just as the students of a thousand other institutions have published theirs. This year, however, it seemed undesirable to ask the business men to support such a minor enterprise when so many large ones of world-wide scope were calling for their assistance. This year, too, it seemed, because of the habits of the time, more natural than ever before for students and faculty to cooperate as equal partners in an enterprise. Hence this Year Book assumes the form that it does. We submit it to you for your pleasure, or your information, as the case may be, and hope thereby it may prove of some value to you.

The Washington State Normal School

The Washington State Normal School at Ellensburg was established by act of the legislature on March 28, 1890, the same year that the Normal School at Cheney was established, but no appropriation was made for building or maintenance of either school. Governor Elisha P. P. Ferry appointed as trustees of the school W. R. Adams, Dr. T. J. Newland, and Fred W. Agatz, all of Ellensburg.

In 1891 the legislature appropriated $15,000 for maintenance for two years and the Public School Board of Ellensburg offered free of cost accommodations for housing the Normal in the Central Public School on the second floor.

On September 7, 1891, the Normal School opened with the following faculty: Principal Benjamin F. Barge; Assistant Principal W. N. Hull; Miss Fanny C. Norris and Miss Rose M. Rice, teachers. A dormitory was established at 803 East Second St., with Mrs. John Grass as matron. Out of a class of thirteen this first year eleven were graduated from the senior class, three year course having been outlined for Normal students. There were enrolled during the first year eighty-six students, representing twenty-five counties of the state, ranging in age from sixteen to fifty-eight, the average age of the graduating class being about twenty-three.

The enrollment during the second year was one hundred and thirty-nine, and twenty-three were graduated that year.

The legislature of 1893 appropriated $25,000 for the maintenance of the school for the biennium, April, 1893, to April, 1895, and also appropriated $60,000 for the erection of a building. During this year the enrollment was 117, and 24 were graduated. At the end of this year Principal Barge resigned and was succeeded by P. A. Getz, who came from the Oregon State Normal at Monmouth.

At the beginning of the fourth year, September, 1894, the new building was occupied. The land bounded by Eighth, D, Ninth and E streets had been donated to the state by the city of Ellensburg.

Principal Getz was head of the school for four years or until the summer of 1898. During that time the school grew and developed. A kindergarten was established, and the training school was increased until it included the first eight grades and was independent of the city system. A library was being slowly built up, apparatus was purchased and installed, and a museum was started. The dormitory and dining-hall were located on Fifth street between Pine and Ruby in 1895-6. This was continued for one year. Then a move was made to the Nash block on the corner of Main and Fifth. This building was used as a dormitory for fifteen years, or until the present dormitory was built in 1911.

During Principal Getz's administration more stress was placed on the professional side of the preparation and less on the academic.

In the summer of 1898 Mr. William E. Wilson, for several years principal of the Rhode Island State Normal School, became principal here. Five other new members were added to the faculty, three resigning. This marked the beginning of the third epoch in the life of the Normal School as measured by principals.

Since that time the school has grown and improved. The Training School in 1909 became a part of the city school system with J. W. Nesbit, city superintendent, as principal. It now embraces a well-ordered kindergarten and all the grades from the first to the eighth. The library has grown to about ten thousand well-selected books, with the best magazines, literary, scientific, and pedagogical, the leading newspapers of the state and several leading national newspapers. The biological department was established in 1899 by Dr. Munson and has ever since been in his charge. The manual training department was established in 1908 and now has 28 benches and sets of tools, 18 drawing tables, cabinets, lockers, general tools, 6 lathes, a bench planer, a band saw, 6 forges, and a good manual training library. The domestic economy department was also established in 1908 and is now well equipped for domestic art and science. In connection with the manual arts department a printing press with full equipment has been installed and nearly all the printing of the school is done with its own press.

In 1916 Mr. Wilson retired from the presidency of the school after eighteen years of service during which he had done much to fix certain traditions of the school, as to its freedom for students and faculty members, and scholarly aims. He was succeeded by Mr. George H. Black who had been for a number of years president of the Idaho State Normal at Lewiston, Idaho. There were several changes in the course of study at this time and as a result also some changes in the faculty but the tendency to give to students and faculty the largest possible liberty and to make real scholarship an aim coordinate with the aim of professional preparation was continued and developed from Mr. Wilson's administration.

This session of the legislature for 1919 granted the school $75,000 for a new building which is to be an addition to the dormitory but which will serve at the same time as a center for the school and community. Due largely to Mr. Black's work and influence the last two sessions of the legislature have done much to place school appropriations upon a basis of equality with the other Normal Schools and upon a basis of service expected and demanded of the school. This will enable the school to improve more rapidly its service to students because of the increasing equipment. Its prospects are good—very good indeed.

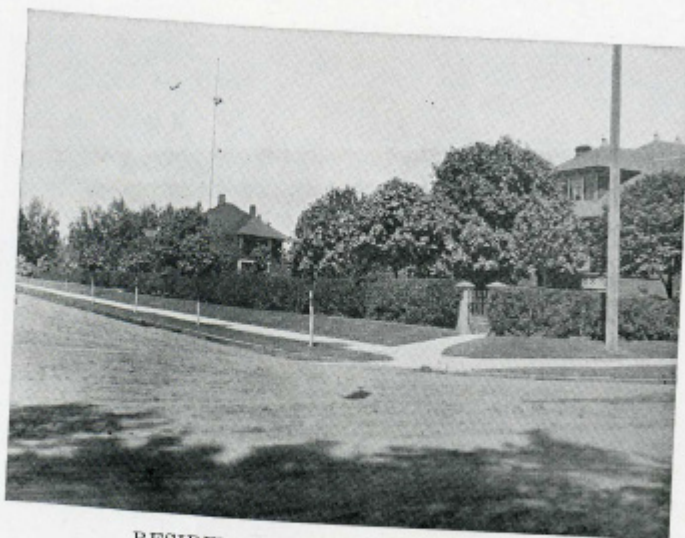

General Statement

PURPOSE AND PLAN.

In keeping with the general purposes and organization of state normal schools thruout the country and within the State of Washington, the Washington State Normal School, at Ellensburg, is organized for the purpose of furnishing definite professional preparation for teachers of the following types:

1. Teachers for graded elementary schools.
2. Teachers especially trained for rural schools.
3. Teachers of kindergarten schools.
4. Principals and supervisors for elementary schools.
5. Teachers of home economics, of manual training and physical education in schools where the same teacher is engaged for grade work and also for the teaching of such special subjects in the first or second years of high school work.
6. Jointly with the University of Washington and the State College of Washington, the basal training for county and city superintendents of schools.

In furthering the above purpose it is the policy of the institution to furnish not only the best available opportunities for the advancement of the standards of scholarship of its students but also provide every facility that the reasonable demands of elementary school procedure seem to dictate should be used to properly emphasize the professional preparation of teachers.

The courses are planned in yearly units of four quarters of twelve weeks each. In order to enable teachers in service to avail themselves of every opportunity for continuation courses the calendar is arranged so that students may register to good advantage at the opening of any quarter.

To further assist teachers who are ambitious for professional advancement the school maintains a well-organized Extension Department. This provides educational assistance for teachers-in-service thru (1) Lectures in General and Special Educational Theory. (2) Supervision of special projects in elementary schools. (3) Surveys and Community Service supplementing the work of teachers in town schools and their communities.

Administration

As in the case of all Normal Schools in the State of Washington, this institution is under the direct control of a Board of Trustees consisting of three members appointed by the Governor of the State. The present personnel of the Board of Trustees is as follows: Mr. Frederick P. Wolff, President; Mrs. Frank Horsley, Secretary, and Mr. Ralph B. Williamson. In addition to the Board of Trustees there is indirect control exercised by the State thru the State Board of Education which controls the curriculum of all State Normal Schools. A third control agency which has power to make surveys and compile reports on efficiency of administration in all state institutions is the State Board of Higher Curricula, created by act of the Legislature of 1917. The first biennial report of the State Board of High Curricula was published December, 1918, and is available to all who desire copies for reference.

Enlargement of Equipment

From time to time appropriations have been made for enlargements of the equipment of the institution to provide for new lines of work. This year the sum of $75,000 is being expended to finish the Women's Dormitory and provide a building which shall function as the social center of the School. This building will occupy a site directly south of Kamola Hall connecting with it on its west exposure and facing south on Eighth Street. The new building will also furnish ample space for the work of the Home Economics Department and this department will henceforth have charge of the dining room and general household administration of the dormitories for women. The new building will be approximately 110x140 feet and will be planned to conform to the general architectural design of Kamola hall.

LAKE WAPTUS

The Training School

In the Primary Department the aim has been not only to fulfill the requirements in formal subjects, but to give each child an opportunity for free expression in dramatic plays, and rhythms, in original verses, and melodies. The free period each day has been spent in making a useable screen, play house, farm-buildings and toys of all descriptions; in putting out a room newspaper, and in modeling articles from clay or paper. These opportunities for real living in the school, result in more cooperation and greater responsibility while at the same time they lay foundations for permanent interests in life.

Throughout the Intermediate Department an effort has been made to carry off all of the work thru projects or problems. The fourth grade studied the forest regions of the United States thru the problem: "Where do we get material for making paper?" They made paper from linen rags and used it to make a booklet telling of their project. They made kites, gliders, miniature airships and wind toys in their study of the causes and courses of winds. Later they studied the life of the Indians and American pioneers constructing, so far as possible, the things used in food, shelter and clothing by these people.

The Fifth Grade has had Manual Training, Sewing and, Camp-Cookery classes. For a language activity the boys and girls prepared a series of talks on "Roosevelt", emphasizing his work as a statesman. These they collected and from this material a book was compiled which was presented to the library. In Geography work the last quarter they have been enjoying a series of travelogues.

The year of 1918-1919 for the Grammar Grade pupils has been a particularly busy and happy one. The various grades held several evening parties and afternoon picnics. The Home Economics class served luncheons to the Board of Directors of the Bird House Corporation at their regular meetings. This corporation was organized to earn money for the purchase of needed athletic supplies, thru the production and sale of bird houses. The Seventh Grade published a weekly school newspaper which was printed by the boys during their Manual Arts period.

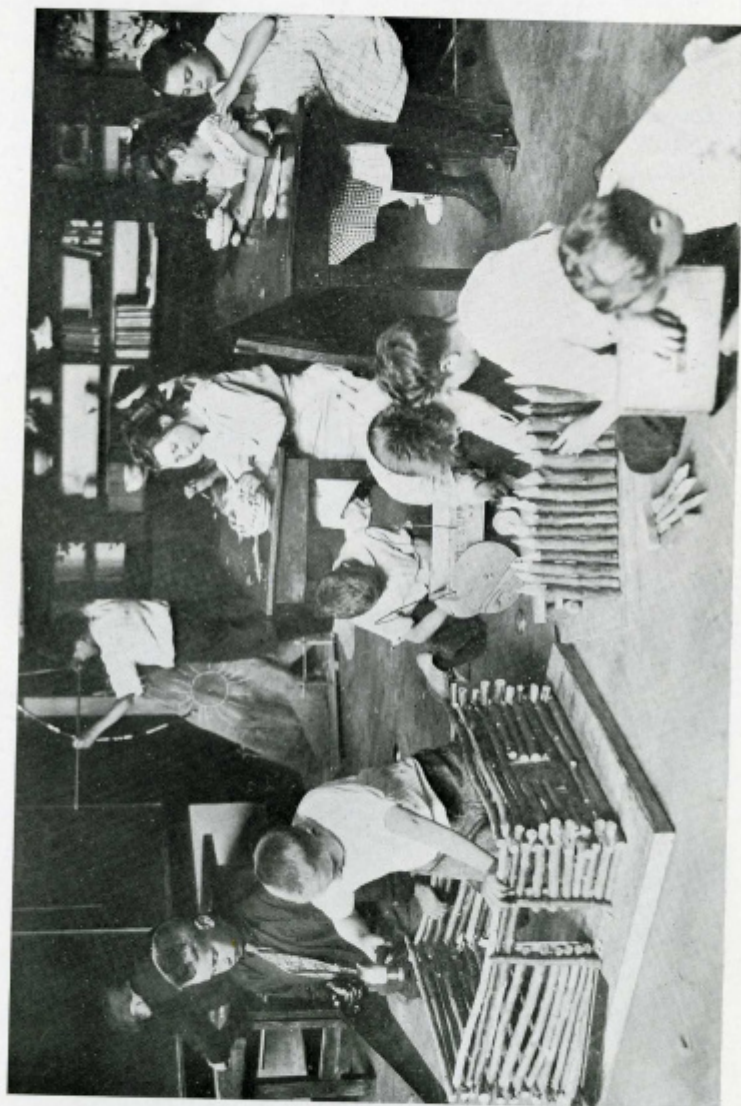

The sixth grade perfected their banking project begun last year, and inaugurated a new one, The Shoe Company, with its place of business in the Administration Building.

The Glee Clubs furnished music for various assemblies, entertainments and commencement.

The pupils all participated loyally in Liberty Loan Drives, and War Savings campaigns, trying in all ways to patriotically serve their country.

Industrial Arts and Vocational Education

The necessity of Industrial Education as a factor in general education is being recognized more and more and Normal Schools are giving more attention to the preparation of teachers who possess the ability to teach industrial subjects in the different grades.

Four phases of work come under the supervision of this department:

1. The giving of "handwork" to those Normal students who do not expect to teach it in any form. Here, the aim is to broaden interest and to make good consumers of hand made products; so methods of construction, good design and the proper use of tools are emphasized.
2. The giving of handwork to those students who do expect to teach it in some form. Here, the aim is to make good teachers, and the emphasis is placed on methods of construction, use of tools, presentation and educational aims.
3. To those who register for the courses in Vocational Education, the subject is presented in such a way as to show the social and economic demands for Vocational Education, and the current experiments in this field.

4. In Industrial Education the aim of the work in the primary grades is to give general educational values, culture, appreciation, expression of ideas, and also to be furnishing opportunity for the expression of the creative impulses which has been so strongly developed in the race as to be classed by some as an instinct. In the upper grades the aim of the work is prevocational as well as general educational, so the emphasis here is on habits, attitude and variety of experiences in several media such as wood, metal, leather, electricity, etc.

So far as Normal students are concerned then, the Department of Industrial Arts and Vocational Education furnishes opportunity for the development of interest in good handwork, well designed, in order that the students may be intelligent buyers, appreciate good house furnishings and develop the ability to teach industrial subjects.

Kamola Hall

Of the many things a girl thinks about before she goes away to school, the one which gives her greatest concern is whether or not she is going to find interesting and homelike surroundings in which to live.

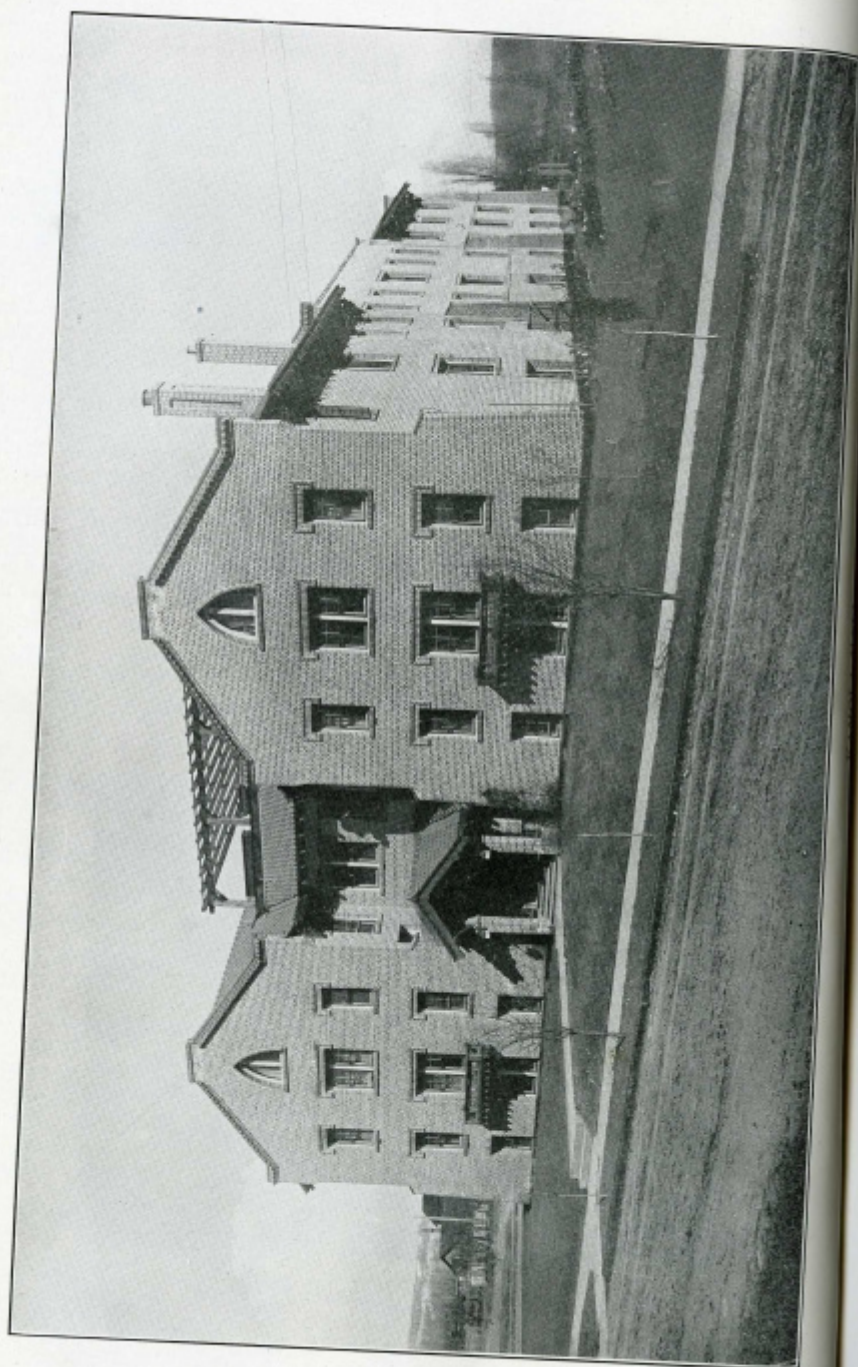

Experience has proven to us that girls derive the greatest amount of pleasure from their school life if they live in groups where genuine school spirit may develop and where social consciousness may be awakened.

Kamola Hall, the residence hall for girls who are attending the Normal School in a peculiar way affords this kind of student life. Here the girls work and play, and live in a democratic, co-operative fashion, where they learn by experience to respect the rights of others, and where they may expect to have their own rights respected.

The physical features of the Hall are many and attractive. The rooms are commodious and well lighted. The bath rooms are very complete and well equipped. The drawing rooms are cozy by virtue of their fire places, comfortable furniture, pictures and musical instruments. The dining room is very homelike with its chintz curtains, its piano, and small round tables at which groups of eight sit and come to know each other very well. Even the laundry becomes glorified into a hall for the promotion of social intercourse and a real laboratory for the practice of co-operative living.

Reference to Kamola Hall would not be complete unless mention were made of the Kamola Hall Association, a plan worked out by the students for the successful and efficient management of the details of their house life. Through this association a very critical attitude is taken toward their numerous activities and habits, and the weekly meetings become a forum where each girl expresses her opinion on many questions and where those decisions are reached which best seem to promote the welfare of the whole.

Appointment Office

The Washington State Normal School maintains an appointment service free of charge. It attempts on the one hand to assist superintendents and school boards in finding suitable teachers and on the other to help its students to obtain the best positions available which they are suited to fill. This service is state wide and open to former graduates in service as well as current graduates.

During the past four months the Normal School through this appointment service has been active in placing over one hundred teachers. The office has sent out more than three hundred letters of recommendation and also made many recommendations by telephone and telegraph, and personal interview.

Direct requests for 273 teachers have been received as follows: 27 principals, 17 high school teachers, 67 rural teachers, and 153 grade teachers. In addition to these special requests, 15 county superintendents have called for lists of teachers available for their counties.

A large number of superintendents and school board members have called personally for interviews with prospective teachers and the appointment committee.

The bulk of calls for teachers have come, of course, from the State of Washington but many have been received from Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Alaska, and Hawaii.

Salaries of all teachers placed, average slightly above $90, the lowest salary being $75 and the highest $155. The majority of grade and rural salaries range from $90 to $100. This average shows an increase of between ten and fifteen per cent over the salary of last year.

The experience of this office is practically the same as that of all teacher placing bureaus throughout the country and the conclusion is forced that the state is seriously in need of a large increase in the number of trained teachers.

The Business Office

The Business Office is a thoroughly modern office equipped with the best appliances and devices for keeping records of a business. It is here that all the records of business transacted by the school are kept.

This school is recognized as being one of the pioneers in working out a system of educational cost accounting showing true cost of each of the factors involved in conducting an educational institution.

The dormitory accounts are kept in the Business Office, and here again is to be found a very complete system of cost accounting showing in detail all the receipts and expenditures for the different halls of residence and dining

Department of Education

GENERAL POLICY

The department of education is in general accord with the present wide spread reconstructive tendencies in local and national education.

All courses offered in the department are planned in light of present day scientific investigation and with special reference to the practical problems of elementary education.

The department works in close conjunction with the departments of practice. During the past year members of the department have made numerous visits to our teachers, both in training and in service, to render assistance from time to time wherever needed and to find out if possible just how the department of education may be of more immediate use in the fields of educational practice. As a result some of our courses are undergoing reconstruction and new courses are being offered.

SPECIAL AIMS

1. Cultural aim. In order that the teacher may be more rationally able to find her place in the teaching profession and to cooperate with her associates, supervisors and the community more wisely and sympathetically, the department puts forth special effort to develop an intelligent understanding of and an appreciation for the wider purposes, duties and privileges of public education.

2. Professional aim. Special effort is put forth to send each teacher out from the department thoroughly grounded in the theory and technique suited to the particular type of work to be done.

3. Scientific aim. Feeling that the teacher in the school is closer to the source of scientific data and hence in position to render great service to educational theory the department endeavors to develop in each student the scientific spirit and a certain amount of scientific procedure.

FUTURE OUTLOOK

While the major function of the department will continue to be to serve the theoretical needs of the teacher in training and in service, beginning with next year the department will give more attention to research courses for those who show interest and ability along theoretical and administrative lines.

Library

The main library of the Washington State Normal School is located on the first floor of the Administration Building. The total number of volumes is somewhat over twelve thousand, all of which have been selected with great care. It is primarily a reference library that has been built up around the courses offered in the Normal School. As these courses have changed the library has grown along the lines of their development in order to provide sufficient reference material for the students in the various courses. As far as the funds will allow, the library attempts to meet not only the needs of the faculty and students in the various fields of instruction and special study, but to build up its collections on the broadest cultural basis.

The pamphlet, clipping, and picture collections are growing in size, and are arranged for use by the latest recommended methods. They serve as a good illustration as to ways of obtaining and caring for inexpensive material in the school library.

The library is well provided with the larger and more important books of reference and aims to keep up-to-date on such material. The collection contains the latest editions of the best encyclopedias, dictionaries, yearbooks, handbooks, etc.

Among the magazines subscribed for are the leading educational and technical publications of the country as well as those magazines which are of a more strictly cultural nature.

The children's library is housed in two attractive rooms in the Training School Building. The collection includes the best in children's literature, and is to be added to during the coming year. The library has been recatalogued during the present year, thus making the material much more available. Teachers in training find this library a profitable place to spend leisure time, since there is a growing demand for teachers with a good knowledge of children's literature and the organization of school libraries.

Students, faculty, and librarians work together to make the library a success in the school.

Psychology and Teaching

Psychology has long held a prominent place in the education of the teacher. Until recently, however, it was not in form to render much more than a cultural service. Owing to the rapid developments in the psychological field it has become an applied science and as such functions in a very vital way in the teaching process.

The field of educational psychology is so broad and so filled with interesting and useful material for the teacher that in the limited time given a teacher in training, only a few phases of the subject can be taught.

Child psychology is fundamental as it deals with the growth and development of the child. It considers original nature from the standpoints of origin and value, and the processes of modifying nature, or in other words the process of learning.

The psychology of learning, of thinking, of interest and attention, of the emotions and the will, or social psychology, is each big enough and vital enough to be given separate treatment and any one who develops an interest in the psychological aspect of life is given an opportunity to do intensive work in the above phases.

The rapid development in mental and vocational testing together with the impetus given it by the army testing has opened a new field which is not only fascinating to any one but of great significance to the teacher. We know that the physician's success depends primarily upon a correct diagnosis of his patient and just as surely does the success of the teacher depend upon her correct diagnosis of the child. Mental and vocational testing provides the teacher with part of her necessary equipment for such work and no teacher should fail to avail herself of the information given in such a course.

Tests and measurements of the product of learning provide material for diagnosing not only the child's learning processes, but the teacher's methods and the efficiency of the school system.

Then, too, in the past few years a study has been made of the various subjects in the curriculum with a view to determine their valuation, and the abilities and processes involved in learning them, so that at the present time we have a body of very satisfactory findings to offer in the psychology of reading, writing, spelling, drawing, music and number.

The teacher who is equipped with the knowledge of the nature and development of children, with an ability to determine the native tendencies and capacities of a child, and who has the information concerning what abilities it takes to learn various fields of human knowledge and industry and then can diagnose the products of that learning has some very vital equipment in her possession for the work of teaching.

Objects, inspirations to loyalty, admiration, hope and love. That all men may share in all these things more fully and more equally is the aim of Social Science (Sociology) and of the separate social sciences (Economics, Philanthropy, Finance, etc.), of all socialized sciences and of all education.

Social Science aims to be and is becoming the science of applying all other sciences and all arts, both practical and fine, to human welfare.

Can anything in the way of knowledge be more interesting, more important for all to become acquainted with than a science which is now developing so rapidly?

TREBLE CLEF CLUB

Treble Clef Club

The musical life of the school is represented by the Glee Club and Double Trio, for the majority of the girls who sing enjoy the varied music which the club affords. The general rehearsals are twice a week and the girls acquire the real get-together spirit as well as the learning of fine choruses from modern composers.

The Club presents one heavy concert during the winter to the general public, and in this, one finds the happy abandon of the school girl voice as well as the well trained knowledge of the chorus in hand. A large part of the time of Baccalaureate Sunday is given to a musical program, and much of the enjoyment of the service is due to the fine ensemble singing of the club.

Girls who have unusual voices have good opportunity for individual work in the club, and frequent simple programs give them pleasant solo experience.

MEMBERS OF THE CLUB

DOUBLE TRIO

"We'll have you merry,

I'll bring you where you shall hear music."

And music which the best of critics love to hear,

Such concord of sweet sound the trio makes

T'will, like the pipes of Pan, woo elf and sprite,

A rippling bird-like voice hath Gladys Montgomery

Which warbles high above the other five,

And with her sings Floy Filer, whose clear, rich tones

Thrill music lover's ears, as well as pleases all good taste.

Lessie Baker with her mezzo voice adds wondrous harmony

With Mildred Boyes to aid her in a quiet way.

A goodly pair to sing the lower tones are Zella Ferguson

And sweet Mae Chambers. Well do these preserve a balance

For a trio which gives us pleasure, inspiration too,

On occasions many when good programs are.

A lovely six forsooth, whose harmonies and voices clear

Will ring in appreciative minds full many a year.

Department of Health and Physical Education

Believing that the individual in order to realize the fullest value from life in all of its aspects must have a sound body and interpreting physical education in the broad, true sense, the aims of the Department of Health and Physical Education, are:

1. The conservation of health.
2. The correction of defects which are detrimental to an efficient life.
3. The development in each student of an informed health conscience.
4. The effective training of muscles and nerves.

The conservation of student health includes a thorough physical examination, advice in regard to the correction of defects found, suggestions in regard to the elimination of errors of hygiene, and health supervision throughout the school year.

The physical examination brings to light a very great number of remedial physical defects which if left uncorrected would hinder the physical and mental development of the student. So long as a very great per cent of our students come to us with exaggerated spinal curves, postures of weakness and inefficiency, weak back and abdominal muscles which necessitate poor posture, functional weakness of the digestive system, rigid spines and superficial breathing, with a general inadequate muscular strength and endurance, there is a great need for a definite corrective program. We are meeting this need in the corrective work to which every student with a remedial physical defect is assigned. There she is given corrective exercise designed especially to meet her individual needs and the results of this work are apparent in an increased physical and mental capacity. An easily exhausted body means a brain incapable of strong or prolonged effort.

The problem of developing in each student an informed health conscience which will function with her both as an individual and as a member of a group, is a very real one. Class and individual instruction is given in the general problems of health and each student is stimulated to live hygienically, to heed the first signs of lessened vitality, to take an active interest in the promotion of all measures that make for improved hygiene both individual and group, to realize that prevention is far better than cure and to appreciate the real significance of a well balanced day and a clean bill of health.

There is no period of life when recreation and play are not essential to a program of daily living. Play is the best kind of activity for the training of muscles and nerves, promoting health, nervous stability, vital and functional strength, friendliness, loyalty and cooperation. Girls especially need encouragement in play and the Normal School provides facilities for a wide range of organized games, folk dancing and rhythmic, and each student is encouraged to participate in that form of activity best suited to her individual condition and needs.

Health is fundamental to life and its enjoyment and to the greatest success along every line of endeavor and it is the aim of this department to make possible for every student, physical efficiency, a stable nervous system, good digestion, strong heart and lungs, a good carriage, grace, poise, and robust health as a foundation for the most complete realization of life.

PHYSICAL MEASUREMENTS

Household Arts

The Home Economics Department during the past year seems to have displayed no special immunity during the "flu" epidemic in spite of the fact that the microscopic enemy had three flights of stairs to climb. However we suffered no more than did our co-workers who are more fortunately situated.

In the Training School the work in both sewing and cooking has been carried on in the 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th grades. Both boys and girls in the fifth grade have attended the class in camp cooking. This class was conducted in real camp fashion. The kits were made by the girls in their sewing period and were packed only with utensils necessary for the preparation of a meal out of doors. The seventh grade served a series of luncheons to the Bird House Committee organized to promote the sale of bird houses made in the manual training classes. Even the first grade was initiated into the mysteries of a school kitchen and though some revision had to be made in the way of suitable equipment yet one was made to feel that a child naturally adapts itself to its environment. Not only that, the enthusiasm and interest in evidence all during the project was sufficient to convince any teacher or student that the real joy of making cookies to serve to mother when she comes to visit school, should never be denied any child and that all a child needs is an opportunity to handle "tools" among which might be classed the rolling-pin and the cookie-cutter.

That the Normal School is maintained for the child and its welfare is one of the standards adopted by this department. Working hand in hand with the health and hygiene department, classes in school lunch room cookery have been held each quarter of this year with the school lunch room for a practice field, the hot lunches being planned, prepared, and served by the students. The whole problem is presented with a view toward analyzing and solving the school lunch problem of all children under different types of school systems.

The class in Elementary Cookery introduced itself to the fundamental principles of cooking thru the effect of heat on foods. This led up as a preparation to advanced cookery in which these principles were applied in a practical way—the preparation and serving of three meals a day. The market order and cost per person of all meals were carefully worked out developing one phase of the household budget,—the food problem.

All during the school year classes have been organized in the renovation and remodeling of garments and hats giving the students the problem of making over the old material as well as selecting and designing the new. The enrollment in these classes included some of the housewives of the community as well as students. The results of the work done by these classes were noted in a Fashion Show given at the close of the year when each student, as a model, displayed her own handiwork.

One of the most popular courses in this department has been the course in House Construction and Home Decoration. A special feature of this course was the furnishing of a student's rest room in the Administration Building. The practice field for this work has been in Kamola Hall where the students carry out the principles of applied art and design in planning and decorating their own rooms.

Extension Service

When you go out into the field next fall and face forty inquiring youngsters whose questions you cannot answer and you feel as though after all you were not cut out to be a teacher, write to the home folks in Ellensburg and tell your troubles. The difficulty with so much progressive theory is that it seems easy on paper but trying to put it into practice all alone is hard sledding. Send your S. O. S. back to your Alma Mater. If a letter will solve your problem you shall have it from our most reliable source. If a personal visit from a faculty member will be of more help we will do our best to meet your request.

When you hit a snag welcome it. Dig at it. Pull at it. Dynamite it if need be. Herein lies the getting of experience, and according to our Prophet Dewey, problems beget thinking.

Remember too, in the world at large there are an infinite number of others who are also uprooting snags; perhaps similar to yours. Thru the Normal get in touch with them. If there is a book, or pamphlet, or magazine article applying to your problem we will try to send it to you.

The person who stays in a rut wears it nice and smooth. Beware! In no field are there more interesting highways and byways than in education. Explore the new. If you have an embryonic experiment in mind that promises to become a worthy project, forward march, and keep a line of communication with Ellensburg.

Business and Commerce

The department of Business Education is conducted on the theory that every one should know something of the ordinary business practices. Courses in Elementary Book Keeping, Farm Accounts, Household Budgets and Accounts, Contracts and Business Law, Stenography and Typewriting are offered, for the purpose of giving the student an opportunity to get an acquaintance with business practices, as stated above, rather than to train persons for clerical positions in business offices. The courses are so designed, however, that the student taking them can readily follow them up with more advanced work and be prepared for such positions.

In addition to the courses named above, a course in Public School Finance and Accounting, is offered especially to furnish teachers the basis of a definite understanding of the preparation of school budgets, and of the factors involved in the making of tax levies for school purposes.

Other courses offered by the department include a course in Applied Arithmetic, Commercial Geography, and Penmanship.

The Rural Department

In order that the students of the Rural Department of the Normal School may have the best training in their line, two rural training centers have been established. One is located in King County near Enumelaw while the other, the Broadway School, is three miles from Yakima. Each of these training centers is under the direction of a rural supervisor who is one of the regular faculty of the Normal School.

The students go to these centers during their training and spend one quarter in actual rural conditions. During this period they study Rural School methods, Community Work, Rural School Organization and do practice teaching.

At Enumelaw there is a teacher's cottage which will accommodate six students and the supervisor. Here they live and do their own house-keeping. This cottage is very homelike with its fireplace, large living room, and sleeping porch. Since it is located on the school grounds the students are ready at all times to carry out the community work that is so much needed and desired. A similar plan is now under headway for the supervisor and student teachers at Broadway.

Along with their regular work the students have an opportunity to take active part in the many activities of the community and very soon become leaders, although they are to be in the locality but one quarter. The Parent-Teacher Associations, the Grange, the Community Club, all have been much stronger in these two schools because of the aid given by the students and supervisor. The students also call in all the homes of the community and meet all parents personally. This enables students and patrons to cooperate more successfully in the development of the child.

All students in this work are, after this training, better fitted to go into their own schools and carry on the live, active work which is now the privilege of the teacher.

CAMP COOKERY EXCURSION

Biological Sciences

The biological department was established in 1899. It occupies a suite of rooms in the main building—a recitation room provided with models, charts, and illustrative material, a biological and a bacteriological laboratory. The equipment is sufficient for courses in botany and zoology. At present the following courses are scheduled: 1. general biology; 2. cell biology; 3. organic evolution and heredity; 4. cosmic evolution; 5. human evolution; 6. bacteriology, parasitology and advanced sanitation; 7. nerspology; 8. advanced physiology; 9. botany; 10. nature study. More details regarding equipment and publications are given in the Kooltuo of 1918.

The words research and investigation occur frequently in the vocabulary of normal schools. The following is a brief synopsis of such work from this department, taken from the published proceedings of the American Association of Anatomists, Pittsburgh meeting, April 17, 18, 19, 1919, under the title Amitotic karyokinesis and general histogenesis.

"Mesodermal tissues are structurally related. Their obvious differences are due to the nature of the inter-cellular substances and the interacellular matrix. The cells of these tissues are distinct physiological centers; but they are not morphologically separated. Although, as aggregates, they seem to form solid masses, as in muscle, cartilage, and bone, they are made up of net-like membranes, either lining cavities or superimposed. The anisotropic, structural elements of these membranes, consist of nucleus, centrosome, and sphere, with astral rays. These rays are continuous with the cytotreticulum which may be embedded in a solid, hyaline, or liquid matrix. The rays of one cell are continuous with the rays of the neighboring cell areas. All the cells are connected by intercellular bridges of astral rays. Cell membranes do not exist. The boundaries are sometimes perceptible as enlargements of peripheral fibrils, or as granules deposited between the fibres at the original cell boundary. It might be designated as a syncytium, if the connotation of that term be modified accordingly. Endothellum, connective tissue, cartilage, bone and muscle are organically connected with each other, as are the cells of these tissues.

Although karyokinesis as well as amitosis are rarely seen in these tissues when fully differentiated, cell multiplication is not as unusual as is generally supposed. By slow growth, the cells of these tissues divide in a manner that is neither karyokinesis nor amitosis, but rather a combination of these modes of cell division. A permanent and constant centrosome, which is a secreting organ as well as the center of cytoplasmic growth, and the morphological center of the astral system, is found either at one pole of the nucleus, or wholly within it. The nucleus divides by a process of cleavage, without forming a spindle. The centrosome may or may not divide at the same time. After the division of the nucleus, the centrosome usually moves in between the two halves of the nucleus and may then gradually divide. The two centrosomes gradually grow apart, but their astral rays continue to unite them after an equatorial plate of granules have been deposited between the two halves of the cell. In this way multiplication can go on without severing the connection between the cells. To avoid a new term, I have called this mode of cell division amitotic karyokinesis. In striated muscle, the main facts are similar, though the details vary. A sarcomere bounded by the membranes of Krause is originally a cell with a nucleus and centrosome.

Permanent and constant centrosomes also exist in some nerve cells. The neurofibrillate are extended astral rays. There is probably a similar continuity between neurons at the synapse, which marks the original boundary between the neurons. The tentative hypothesis is suggested that the neuraxon is a bundle of astral rays connecting nerve cells, as similar fibers connect bone cells and are responsible for the canaliculi of bone.

One conclusion to be drawn is that cells are organized, and that the cell theory is at fault when it fails to recognize the morphological continuity of protoplasm in many celled organisms. A mechanistic explanation of this cell organization is a problem suggested by the studies here announced."

Oral Reading and Dramatic Art

The work of this department which is a branch of the English Department, is founded upon the principle that growth and development of the mind depend not only upon receiving right impressions but equally upon giving them expression. The fundamental law is that impressions determine expression. The aim is to supply a common lack in modern methods of education—the harmonious development of the individual.

These courses have in view the eradication of faults in the uses of the voice, and the development of a well modulated and expressive voice so essential in the school room.

The course in Reading and Voice Culture aims to fit students to place their voices so that they may use them most effectively, whether reading or speaking. Principles properly understood, constant practice, and abundant opportunity to change wrong habits for better ones, using material suitable for grade work, all make this a very beneficial course.

A course in Dramatization and Special Programs solves the problem of school entertainments. The work consists of preparation and presentation of suitable material for all occasions in the primary, intermediate, and grammar grades.

In Dramatic Art, the work consists of technique of play production and presentation of two long dramas and many short ones and two act comedies. We have been very interested in The Little Theater and Little Country Theater movements and this year we have used only those plays which have been presented in the Little Theaters of our country, which seek to give the most entertaining material, but at the same time plays of the highest art value.

English and Modern Languages

We believe that this department's most important work is to awaken the linguistic consciences of its students and thus stimulate linguistic pride that will result in raising the standard of speech among teachers and others in the hope that this will act as a leaven to raise the standard of speech in community, state, and nation. We hope to do this by courteous, but active and systematic cooperation with all the other departments of the institution so that good oral speech will be the constant model always before the students in all classrooms, by our own example more than by precept, and by fostering habits of reading good English in books, magazines, and newspapers. As little attention as possible will be paid to those things that will be forgotten soon, and much stress is attempted on habits of speech and reading, which will remain habits when schools and teachers are things of the past. We desire our students to become as useful in these respects to themselves and to others as possible, and to that end bend all our energies.

To be able to speak and write correctly, appropriately, and forcefully from habit firmly established; to think clearly, logically, and promptly; to be able to spell and punctuate what we write in standard fashion; to read well the printed page aloud so that others will desire to listen; to present children's stories effectively; to know and to love good books; and to know how to help others, especially children, to such knowledge and love—this is the goal towards which we ask our students sturdily to march.

Courses in English and American are offered with the design of broadening the experience and liberalizing the thought of students. In offering courses in French and in Spanish the same purpose is kept in view. A broad, deep, liberal culture results from right acquaintance and association with the best culture of the past and the present as exhibited in books, and by such courses we hope to widen the horizon of our lives and bring ourselves into sympathetic intercourse with the best thought and the best thinking of the world.

Recreation

The principle involved in our effort to supply adequate and wholesome recreation for our students is, that for the most complete development of the individual, an outlet for energy must be supplied in lines other than those definitely prescribed by the heads of the various departments of our school, since those, no matter how interesting and varied they may be, will assume in time the characteristics of "work," and unsupplemented will destroy the balance so necessary for one's best endeavor.

Throughout the year, then, we try to engage the whole student body in such recreational activities as indoor parties, hikes, dances, picnics, teas and receptions.

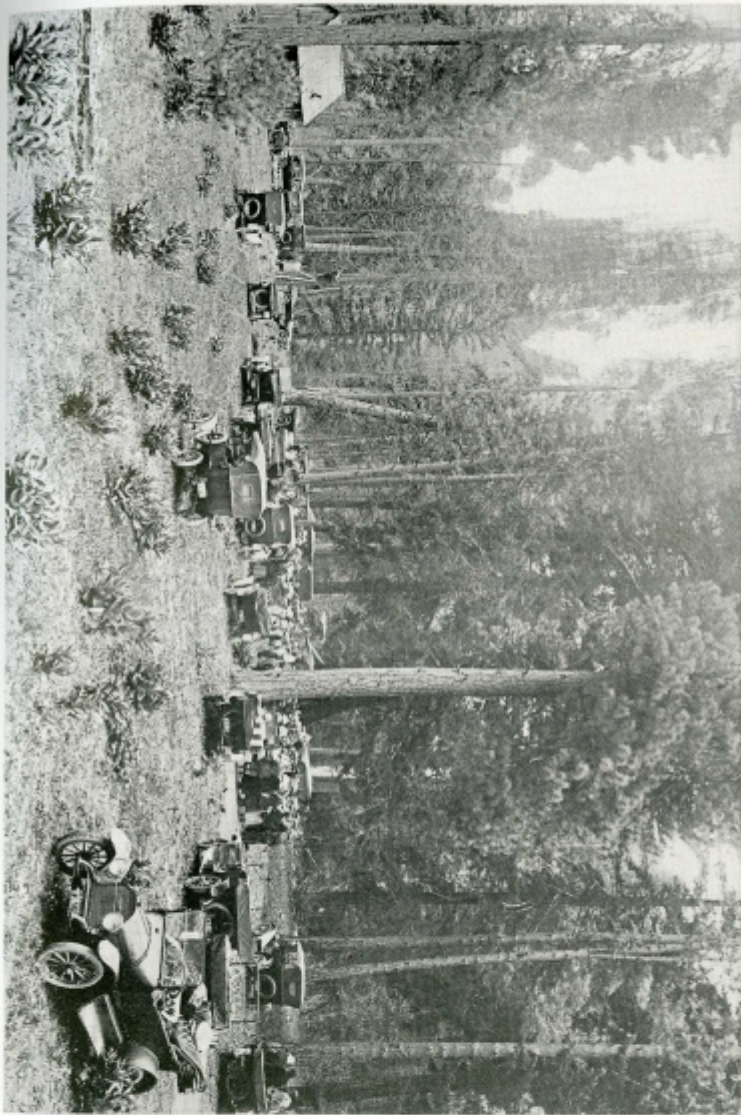

Members of the faculty, from time to time, cooperate with student committees in working out the details of these activities, altho we believe the greatest value results to the students if they are allowed to use their own initiative and originality in working out plans for this part of their school life, and that they should be encouraged to assume this responsibility.

SCHOOL PICNIC, TAENEM CANYON

Special Lectures

Besides the regular class room lectures and assembly talks, the Normal School provided this year, as usual, numerous special lectures at no cost to students, or at a reduced price.

Summer school students who were here in August of last year had the opportunity of hearing Miss Ida Tarbell, Private Peat and various musicians, readers, lecturers and entertainers in connection with the Chautauqua.

The Ellensburg Lyceum Course was open to all members of the Associated Student Body at almost no cost to individual members of the organization, because the Normal School helped to support the course. Thru this we enjoyed for the season of 1919 the following numbers: The Boston Opera Company; Dora de Phillippe, the French Grand Opera Soprano; Dr. A. E. Winship, the best known educational editor and lecturer in America; William Finley, the friend of wild animals; the Rev. La Violette, the "Y" man of the Conde; and the Normal School Play, "A Woman's Way."

Besides these there were other special lecturers brought by the school especially to address the students on subjects relating to education. Dr. Edward Sisson, president of the University of Montana, gave a series of three addresses before the summer session on, "Man the Thinker," "The Test of Teaching," and "The Genius of the American School System." Other special speakers were, Prof. Allen Abbott of Columbia University and Rev. Wm. Worthington of the Open Door Church of Deer Park.

For the school year of 1919-20 the Normal School at Ellensburg will cooperate with various institutions of higher education in the Northwest in bringing several distinguished men who are good speakers, from the East, to address the students on important questions of the day. Prof. Frank Golden of Pullman is secretary of the committee which has this matter in charge and promises some very interesting addresses by important men.

STUDENTS SECTION

MISS ANGELINE SMITH

TO

Miss Angeline Smith

who as Dean of Women, and as Appointment Secretary, has endeared herself to the hearts of all by her loving sympathy and untiring devotion to the interests of our school this section of Our Year Book is Affectionately Dedicated

FOREWORD

Following is a definite plan in our construction of the Students' Section of the 1919 Year Book. We have endeavored to offer something new and up to the minute. With this idea in mind we have adopted as our plan a "Movie" to represent Normal life. We have as our Censor, the Dean; as our Directors, the Faculty; our Promoter, the Business Manager; our Producers, the Editors; and our Players, the Students. Throughout the different departments we have held to our plan and we hope that this section will please you and accomplish it's purpose.

COMPANIES

A. S. B.

In this Filmland of ours there is one large corporation, called the Associated Student Body, the membership of which is enjoyed by both Directors and Players, and which is organized to coordinate the interests of all, and to allow all members the up to date advantages of the Student Opinion, Lyceum Course, Post Office and Book Exchange.

It controls the advertising and business management of all the plays of the different companies. It welcomes all the actors who are newcomers to the studios and once a year gives a dance in the main studio for all its members. Its managers are:

President.....	Mertice Towne
Vice-President.....	Isabel Kuett
Secretary.....	Christie Quimby
Treasurer.....	Mary Yolo
Social Secretary.....	Gladys Macaully

Seniors

The oldest company of the studio is called the "Seniors."

They have gathered here from various parts of the country, some of them having acted at the studio sometime before, but now returning to be leading characters in the plays.

There are sixty-three in the company and each may be said to possess all-star characteristics. They have been hosts to the Junior class, to the studio directors, and to the A. S. B. in gatherings extremely original and quaint.

The present stars of the company are:

Leading Lady.....	Myrtle Brannon
Understudy.....	Gena Berg
Company Reporter.....	Mae Thompson
Business Manager.....	Rosamond McCredy
Social Secretary.....	Vera Riddell

Juniors

"The Juniors" is a jolly company made up of recent arrivals. Many of them are not well seasoned actors but have every indication of the good actor stuff, which attempts a stunt under any circumstances however hard, "for the good of the film."

Those who have been the star performers for the past season are:

Leading Lady.....	Mae Chambers
Understudy.....	Carol Beach
Company Reporter.....	Ayleen McQueen
Business Manager.....	Evelyn Castle
Social Secretary.....	Neva German

Kamola Hall Association

This company figures largely in the life of our Popular Players at Kamola Hall, and was organized for the betterment of the Movie life, to aid the individual in his struggle for a career, and to help keep the standards of the Normal school consistent with modern ideals.

Here the players—both amateurs and stars live together, equally participating in self-government and enjoying the opportunity to develop individual ability and initiative. Its weekly meetings serve as an exchange of ideas and suggestions and a discussion of all phases of our studio life, both business and social.

The Judiciary Board of this company is in reality a Court of Appeal, whose purpose it is to solve all problems in the hall and which works in conjunction with the Executive Board in upholding the standards of the association. The officers are:

President.....	Ethel Johnson
Vice President.....	Marion Tripler
Secretary.....	Hortense Klekenapp
Treasurer.....	Carol Beach, Nita Hill
Social Secretary.....	Gena Berg
	Mertice Towne
	Kathryn Moore

Judiciary Board—Elizabeth Manlow, Ida Christian, Dorothy Mann, Gladys Lynn, Bernice Henderson, Margaret Anderson, Effie Phillips.

Treble Clef

Here's homage to the music of the Treble Clef Girls,
Such harmonies—my sympathetic nerves are in a whirl—
As they make their great crescendos,
And their slow diminuendos,
And fling the soul of music to a music loving world.

For they gaily sing-sing—
As a bird on homing wing,
And give us inspiration, oh these Treble Clef Girls.
These joyous, singing—
Pleasure bringing—Treble Clef Girls.

Double Trio

Oh Double Trio Girls—A toast we raise to you—
Whose "Lift Thine Eyes" did give to us some visions new.

Montgomery and Filer bear

A wondrous high soprano, where

A balanced second (added joys)

Does Baker make and also Boyes.

Ferguson and Chambers (Mae) an alto add—both sweet and true.

All sing as one

Their songs of spring or laughing fun.

But they gaily sing-sing—

As the joyous lark on wing,

And give us inspiration—do these Double Trio Girls—

These six-sweet singing.

Pleasure bringing, Double Trio Girls.

—FLOY ROSSMAN.

Delta Phi

The Honor Society in Dramatics, the Delta Phi, is an old school society for the purpose of giving the best plays and to encourage participation by the students in Dramatics. Its members are elected by the Dramatic Club and this year the above were chosen for their ability.

MISS FORESMAN'S BIRTHDAY

The play "Seven Scenes" dedicated to Miss Foresman has been cleverly dramatized and produced by the Kamola Hall Players. All the scenes were taken at the studio and an all-star cast was used. The stars could not have given a better characterization on the screen. The child actors especially deserve credit—Sammie as the Baby, Mary Yolo, the little girl, Elizabeth Manlow, the school girl, Myrtle Brannon, the High School lass, Mertice Towne, the college girl, and Lois Fisher, assistant Dean. This play was different from the usual style and an immense success. It was first produced in public on February 12, 1919.

THE COLONIAL BALL

This melodrama was considered up to the mark among the many many people, who consider the Colonial Ball the event of the year. The staging was good and the acting natural and strong. The minuet by the costumed lads and lassies of the old days of crinoline skirts, bright shoe buckles, and powdered hair deserves special mention for its power to carry one back to the days of long ago. The flag cotillion, led by Martha and George Washington, in the persons of the popular stars Ingeborg Anderson and Lorene Youne, was very pretty and the serpentine confetti dance was a brilliant closing scene.

SENIOR SNEAK DAY

The scenes filmed for our production "Sneak Day," were taken at the Filer home out in the country. The school scene especially deserves mention. The one room school, wooden benches, black boards, tin bucket and dipper, as well as the hickory switches and dunce caps, could not have been better arranged for the troupe of beaming faced scholars who entered, swinging their lunch pails and paper sacks. Among the fifty little scholars who entered, of special note were the Perkins' twins, Patience Prunella and Prudence Perseverence, and little Willie Denchue. The teacher, ably characterized by the famous star, Floy Rossmann, proceeded with the lessons.

The scenes for the second part of the play were taken at the Studio showing the return of the Seniors and the reception given by the Juniors. The scenes at the moving picture show were cleverly taken but did not interest the audience as did those showing the stacking of rooms by the Juniors, and the attempts to return Mothers, Fathers, Brothers and Sweethearts to their rightful owners, the unfortunate Seniors.

THE DANSANT

The Dansant, given by the Directors in honor of the players on March 21st, was a very attractive affair. The players were received by Miss Lytton, Miss Grupe, Mrs. Black and Mrs. Smyser. Music was provided and between dances dainty refreshments were served from four beautifully decorated little tables, each carrying out a distinctive color scheme. Miss Libert, accompanied by Miss Farwell at the piano gave several delightful numbers. The players enjoyed the evening very much and many thanks were extended to the Directors for the enjoyable occasion.

THE KID PARTY

After a long season of strenuous work, the A. S. B. players decided to spend an evening of relaxation and recreation in the form of a Kid Party. In the studio rooms, fittingly hung with decorations dear to the childish heart, the players in curls, pig-tails, short skirts, and knickerbockers, gathered to spend an evening of pure fun. The stately, the quiet, and the dignified forgot their grown up ways and entered into the spirit of the affair. The flirt was not distinguishable from the saint, nor the vampire from the usual good heroine. Few occasions have been quite so delightful and the Kid Party will not soon be forgotten by the players of the A. S. B. Studio.

FACULTY-JUNIOR PICNIC MAY 3

The Directors of Film Life gave the amateurs a delightful time May 3rd. Their conveyances were hayracks, their hearts were happy and their ride to the river brought back memories of happy childhood on the farm. It was by far the happiest moment for them since they left their home towns, for which they have so often longed in Film Life. The ease with which they forgot their recently acquired dignity and professional airs, guarantees their success as Future Stars.

JUNIOR PROM.

In all this year's review of plays, we have not seen one which impressed us more deeply than the Junior Prom, released through the Junior Class during the month of May. The play was acted with smooth flowing co-operation and ability. The actors truly lived their parts. There was a cast of both male and female characters and positively proved that a picture with a well balanced cast is better than one with a star.

THE SENIOR-FACULTY PARTY

In order to film the scenes for the latest stupendous production of the A. S. B. Company, players and producers, it was necessary to embark on the good ships Pedestriana, Facultatus, Calliope, George Washington, and Columbia, and sail for foreign countries. In few scenes have so much time and expense been sacrificed to make the filming a success.

The scenes taken in Japan were indeed realistic. The almond-eyed Japanese maidens, with their quaint dress and manners who served the tea so charmingly to the strangers, could not, under any circumstances, have given us more fully the atmosphere of old Japan. The pictures which were to be filmed in Russia, were given up on account of the many Bolshevik uprisings, and the next scenes were taken in Holland, the quaint land of dykes, wooden shoes, and happy shining faces under quaint caps.

A few pictures were taken along the border line of Germany, but since orders had been issued against tourists entering the country under the present conditions, no attempts were made to film pictures there.

The players returned to New York, and it was here that the cabaret scenes of happy carefree New York were filmed. The music, light, laughter and dancing, aside from bringing realism into the pictures, meant much to the tourists returning to their own country from foreign lands.

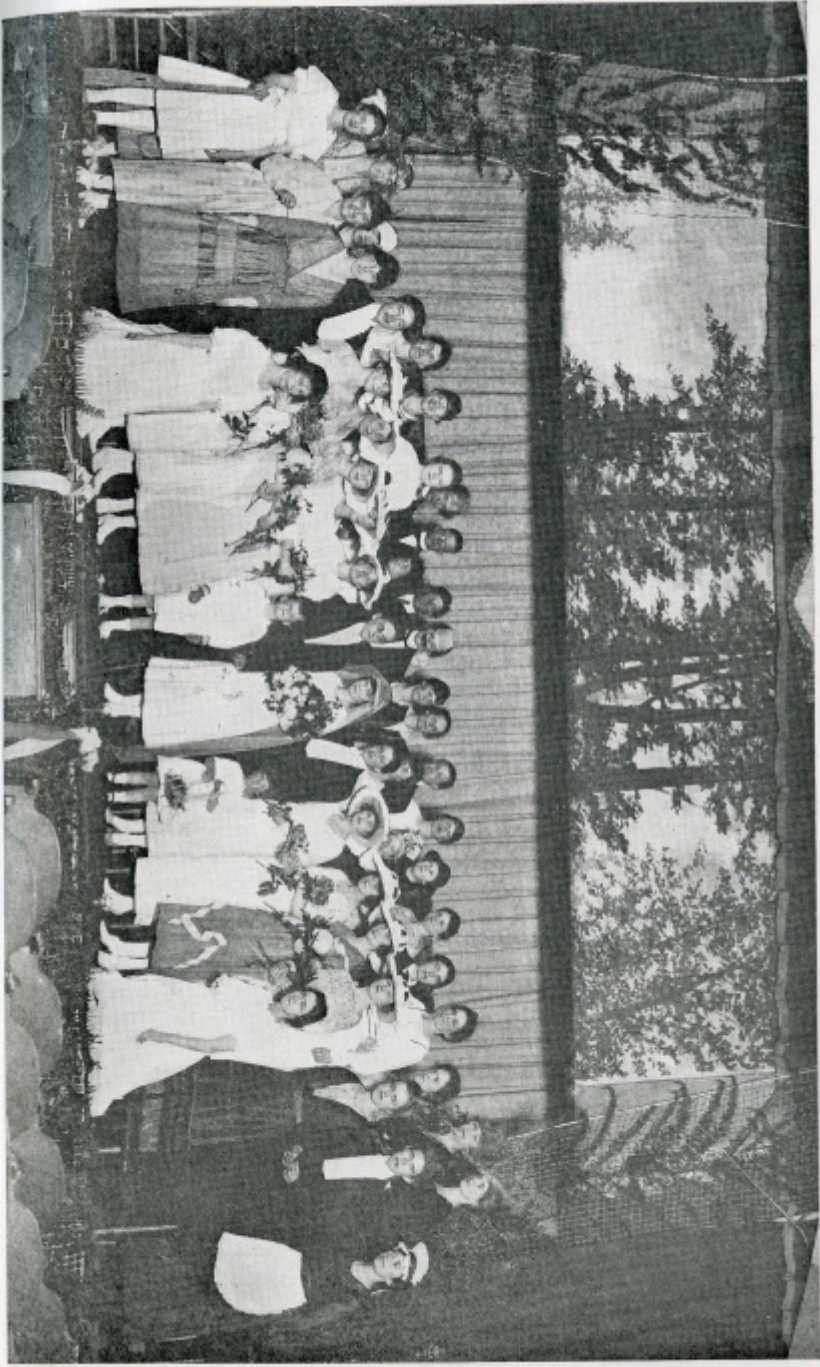

This trip is of immense value in marking a new step in realism in pictures. The pictures and settings could not possibly have been made so perfect under any other conditions; and the profit of the trip can not be estimated.

SCHOOL PICNIC

With spring in the air and the outdoors calling, A. S. B. players, directors and producers, dropped their work and went for one happy afternoon in Taenum Canyon. While the cars purred softly along over the smooth roads, loaded with happy groups of merry-makers, all cares and troubles were forgotten.

During the day a ball game was started. The star pitchers were Miss Lutz and Miss MacLin. Many new rules were introduced. It was not necessary to strike to get to first base, if you could get there any other way, and no one objected. Home runs were sometimes accomplished when the batter managed to make the ball hit a tree and it flew unexpectedly backwards instead of forwards. Numerous other rules were introduced which seemed to function very well at the time.

At precisely six o'clock the banging of tin pans announced lunch, and a long bread line was formed, which seemed to have no end. After lunch, some of the party left but the majority stayed to see the close of the ball game which finally ended amid the cheers of the spectators. After this the tired but happy picnickers climbed into the cars and came home in the soft twilight of the evening.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK

With the Spring comes the breaking up of many of the picture companies, and the forming of new contracts for the next year. Many of the players stay with the old company, but some depart to join other companies, or to organize companies of their own, in new fields of work. The news of the engagement of Miss Senora Normal (the Senior Class—Marian Magill) to Mr. Will B. Pedagog (Clara Behnke) and her plans for leaving the studios, brought much regret to the many players who have known and loved her during her two year's contract with this company, and yet, all hearts wished her joy.

The marriage, which was to take place on the evening of June the eleventh, was announced early, and on June the seventh all the old friends (Alumni) of Senora, gathered in the Kamola Hall Studio for a reunion of happiness, companionship and remembrance, before each should embark on his chosen sea of venture. During the day the party went on a picnic in a grove of trees, and here, many happy groups recalled the times that used to be. In the evening a dinner was served in the Kamola Hall Studio Dining Room. Many of the old friends of the bride gave talks, and many wishes were extended for her happy future. Later in the evening the players, directors and producers all gathered in the A. S. B. Studio for an informal dance.

Many of the guests stayed over for Sunday, and on the morning of that day attended the First Christian Church, (Baccalaureate). The address was given by Rev. H. C. Mason of Seattle, and a thoroughly enjoyable musical program was presented by the best singers among the players at the Studios. (Girl's Chorus). The church was decorated with greenery and dainty yellow rosebuds. Elizabeth Fournier, a friend of the bride, gave several beautiful solos. Much regret was expressed that she could not stay over for the wedding.

On June the tenth, an informal theatre party was given in honor of Miss Senora's recent engagement to Mr. Will B. Pedagog. The play, "A Woman's Way," was very much of a success and the happy party who attended surely appreciated it to its fullest extent.

On Wednesday morning, June the eleventh, the players met for the last time in the A. S. B. Studio. Farewell addresses were given and parting words said, as the players, who had other work in view, as well as Miss Senora, were leaving the next morning for their respective destinations.

On Wednesday evening, the wedding of Miss Senora Normal to Mr. Will B. Pedagog, took place in the reception room of the old A. S. B. Studio. All the directors, players and producers were gathered together and it was interesting to hear the older members of the Studio, and the producers, tell of the early days of Senora, when she had first come to the Studio, full of youth and hope; how she had developed; what they expected of her in her new field of work, and how she was an example to the other players, still struggling for fame.

Miss Farwell (Floy Filer) sang "Oh Promise Me," and the wedding procession entered to the strains of the Mendelssohn Wedding March played by Miss Rossman (Gwenyth Brown). The bride was very pretty in her simple white gown and beautiful wedding veil, which her mother had worn many years before. She carried a bouquet of dainty white rosebuds. The bridesmaids were charming in their gowns of blue, pink, yellow, and green, and the little flower girl scattered rose petals along the way. The service was impressively read by Rev. Brown (Alfred Donhue). One pretty feature of the evening was the presentation of Miss Senora's bouquet to the popular director, Mary A. Grupe, to show Miss Senora's love and appreciation of their work together. Amid hovers of love and congratulation, Mr. and Mrs. Will B. Pedagog departed.

SOME CHEST

Little Robert—Mother, was Robinson Crusoe an acrobat?
 Mrs. Clark, his mother—I don't know—why?
 Little Robert—Well here it reads that after he had finished his day's work he sat down on his chest.

SENTIMENTS OF THE GIRLS

One—Could you marry a man who spends all he makes?
 Another—No, but I could love him while it lasted.

There was a young lady, M. T.
 Oh my, how busy was she,
 With committees and music and A. S. B.
 And now and then time for a midnight "spree"
 Her opinions were many
 But as air, they were free,
 We'd be lost for all ages without our M. T.

FIRE ENGINE PASSING NORMAL

First Girl—What's the fire engine out for?
Second Girl—Oh, they're probably taking a picture of it for the year book.

A WORTHY WIFE

Clara Behnke—Have you made arrangements for your wedding yet, Austa?

Austa S.—Well not quite, Behnke, I've got to buy a trousseau, rent a house, get my husband a job, and a suit of clothes.

Hortense to Alice—Alice, what are "man-dates"—dates with men?

Helen Herozg—Please don't forget the assembly this afternoon and bring a joke with you.

Mary Yolo—Some one can bring me.

THE BIG I (EYE)

Mr. Stephens in Philosophy class—"Name one thing of importance that did not exist one hundred years ago."
Henrietta Taylor, seated in the front row—"Me."

SOME LIFE SAVER

You know Donahues neck? He fell in the river up to it.

NOTHING PERSONAL

Myrtle Ellis—"I wouldn't marry the best man living."
Alfred Donahue—"I'm sorry you feel that way about me but I appreciate the compliment."

THIS OUGHT TO DELIGHT MR. HINCH

A stranger in Boston stopped a Bostonian with question "Can you tell me where to stop at?" "Yes," replied the Bostonian, "stop just before the at."

DEFINITIONS

"Advice is cheap," quoted the Junior.
"Huh," growled Gladys Lynn, "It's apparent you have never had anything to do with lawyers or physicians."

BOARD OVERDUE

First Student—"I wonder why my napkin is damp?"
Second Student—"Probably on account of the due on your board."

HOOVERIZING

Little Bill Stephens said to his father who had got a new set of teeth—"What are you going to do with the old ones?"
His Father—"Oh, those are going to be cut down for you, Bill."

SILENT READING

Mr. Stephens—"Now read like thunder till next Tuesday."
Innocent One—"I don't think I can read that loud."

A NEW WAY TO LOOK AT IT

Miss Hunt to her Art Class—"Now look at it with your eyes closed."

LATEST IN PICTURES

Three girls coming from Art were over heard saying—
First Girl—"Have you seen the latest picture?"
Second Girl—"No."
Third Girl—"What is it?"
First Girl—"Why the Three Angies, Smith, Brazil, and Failer."

SOME IDEAS

All Important Senior—"Say editor, I sent some ideas up here. Have you carried any of them out?"
Editor—"The janitor just carried them all out in the waste basket."

TESTS AND MEASUREMENTS

Johnny came home from school one day and asked his mother—"How many carrots are there in a bushel?" "Why?" asked his mother. "Our music teacher asked us," said Johnny. The teacher really said how many beats in a measure.

NEW SPECIE

Miss Maclin, observing nature's beauty—"Oh, look at the sheep on the hillside!"
Dorothy Draper—"Oh, I thought they were flowers!"
Mr. Draper—"Yes, phlox." (flocks.)
